School of Medicine
Indianapolis, IN

WHY YOU SHOULD PARTICIPATE

This ASGE Masterclass will give participants the unique opportunity to spend a day engaging in-depth with Douglas K. Rex, MD, FASGE, internationally recognized expert on topics impacting everyday clinical practice. This course features a comprehensive didactic course that will review in detail the performance of modern high level colonoscopy.

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN

A comprehensive list of clinically relevant topics will be discussed, including:

- Achieve and exceed the targets for the principle quality indicators including adenoma detection rate and bowel preparation adequacy
- Recognize and characterize the full spectrum of pre-cancerous colorectal lesions
- Recognize cancer in colorectal polyps
- Perform chromoendoscopy in IBD
- Achieve cecal intubation in patients with angulated sigmoids and redundant colons
- Avoid adverse events (complications) and malpractice actions
- Perform endoscopic mucosal resection, including specific approaches to large lesions, flat lesions, hard to access lesions, and serrated lesions, as well as specific techniques such as cap-fitted resection, underwater resection, and avulsion.
